

Our home and family life has been much less disrupted since Attorney General Steve Carter enacted the no call list. I disagree quite strongly that any lending institution, credit card company and so forth should be able to solicit my household simply because I, and thousands like me, do business with them. I am disturbed that the law might be watered down and as such, be rendered useless.